Choose this Ring Sling if:	.You want a ring sling with a pocket in the tail. You are a petite or plus-sized babywearer who finds one-sized ring slings too big or too small.	You want a simple, pretty ring sling in a great selection of colors.	You want a beautiful and simple sling that will work with a newborn but also be supportive for wearing a toddler.	You want a beautiful sling that is very lightweight and will be supportive from newborn to toddler. You are looking for a dressy sling that will still work for everyday.	You want a cushy and supportive sling that will be comfy from newborn to toddler. You love a sling with patterns and designs instead of solid colors. You need a sized sling.	You want a simple, no frills ring sling that is well-made and won't break the bank.
Possible Downsides:	Pocket makes it hard to wrap tail around the rings. Sewn shoulder offers less as much flexibility in positioning. Some colorways fade with heavy use and washing.	Fabric needs softening up. Not quite as supportive for toddlers. Basic fabric.	Some versions need softening up. Slightly grippier than single layer, which makes it harder to adjust and slightly more difficult to pull through the rings.	Silk is "stickier" than linen or cotton, which makes it a bit harder to adjust and slightly more difficult to pull through the rings. Silk looks different after washing.	Wrap fabric can feel heavy to some wearers. 100% cotton slings need more breaking in. No solid color options.	Less supportive for older toddlers. Basic fabric. Limited color selection.
